James Bond is probably the most famous and longest-running spy characters in movie history. He was invented by Ian Fleming, who himself worked in the Foreign Office. Fleming wrote most of his novels at Goldeneye, a house he built in Jamaica.

James Bond's first appearance in movies was in the early 1960s when he fought against a crazy scientist in Dr No. James Bond works for the British Secret Intelligence Service as a double 0 agent with a license to kill. He likes fancy cars and attractive women as well as gadgets that help him in dangerous situations. These gadgets are designed by Q, the research head of the MI6. When James Bond goes on assignments he meets dangerous villains, who want to get the world's power.

Sean Connery was the first and probably best Bond. Daniel Craig is the current Bond. He starred first in Casino Royale in 2006. The Bond girl is also a very important character. She has to be attractive and always brings danger to James Bond.
